

wisconsin currently has a workable no-call list. Any Federal legislation that might override the wisconsin law should be at least as strong. One call after completing business with a telemarketer is too many, but works OK. The 18-month allowed calling idea is totally unacceptable.

keeping cell phones on the telemarketer banned list is required. Perhaps going to cell phones for primary telecommunications is the only sure way to get away from telemarketers without going without a phone entirely.
